

Customer Case Study #1

REMOTE OFFICE

Customer Situation:

2500 Remote offices with 10-250 users at each office. Each office had one backup server and one tape drive. Someone from each office was responsible for ejecting the nightly backup tape and taking it to a nearby bank safety deposit box. This solution was prone to failure, lacked centralized management, was extremely labor intensive and extremely expensive to maintain. Yet all of the user's data still needed to be backed up and taken off site. Additionally, the internet connectivity was very sporadic for many of the offices.

Our Solution:

We teamed with Commvault software to solve the customer issues. Commvault allowed us to centrally manage all of the remote locations from a single User Interface (UI). The software provides for the ability to back up the systems at the local office for fast restores/recoveries as well as deduplication capabilities. The deduplication enabled us to configure the system such that the local backups would be copied over the WAN to one of three major datacenters. The deduplication capabilities in this case were a key to the success due to the fact that as data changed in the remote office only changed blocks were transferred back to the datacenter. This saved huge amounts of network bandwidth. The amount of data currently protected by the solution is 700 TB
